EXTRACT FROM
"CHAMBERS' JOURNAL,"
26TH AUGUST, 1882.

AN Exhibit at the Exhibition of "Means and Appliances for the protection of Human Life" which appeared to have the merit of novelty as well as efficiency, was that consisting of LIFE SAVING GARMENTS. Most Dresses of this kind are of a cumbersome and unsightly description, such Garments in fact as no one would, from choice carry about with him. But here we saw GREAT COATS, LADIES' JACKETS, &c., cut in the latest Fashion too, so skillfully furnished in the Linings with little Cylinders of Cork, that their presence was quite undetected until pointed out.

People in the Habit of Yachting or who are engaged in an occupation which brings them into daily chance of falling into the water would do well to make further enquiries relative to this useful adaptation of the life-belt principle.

The Manufacturers are Messrs. WENTWORTH & Co., of 12, Museum Street, London, W.C.

SOLE AGENTS IN HONGKONG,
LANE, CRAWFORD & Co.,
who have a large assortment of these LIFE SAVING GARMENTS FOR SALE.

The following paragraph appears in a recent issue of the Shanghai Mercury:—The Hongkong Telegraph, of March 6th writes "Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., agents for the Associated Wharves, have, according to the Shanghai Mercury, long had their eye on the Sailors' Home with a view to purchasing" &c. The statement was made by the Shanghai Courier. No similar paragraph ever appeared in the Mercury, and we beg leave to request the Telegraph to correct the error. We never undertook to tell our readers what we thought anybody had an eye on with a view to buying.

A CORRESPONDENT points out that the interesting lecture (7) on "The Superstitions and Customs of the Chinese" delivered by Mr. P. H. Emanuel to the Portsea Jewish Literary and Debating Society, alluded to and detailed in our leading article in Saturday's Telegraph, is taken word for word from Dr. Denny's "Folk-lore of China." Our correspondent is quite correct. We fancied there was something familiar in Mr. Emanuel's so-called "personal experiences," and therefore took the trouble to hunt up Dr. Denny's well known book, where, as we fully expected, the source of the ex-reporter's inspiration at once became apparent. Mr. Emanuel must surely have obtained his peculiar method of dealing with the original ideas and labours of other men, that is, palming them off as his own, from his connection as a reporter with our grand mislaid morning contemporary. However, the great mistake this latest authority on China and the Chinese made was in sending his "hash" to the London and China Express. We really cannot understand how an acute character like "Phinness" could have acted so much like a No. 1 donkey.

The following obituary notice appears in an Indian contemporary:—"We are extremely sorry to record the death of the late Rev. M. S. Ghidli, the Chief Rabbi of the Jewish Community in Bombay. He held the office of the Hazzan at the Byculla Synagogue for more than thirty years, during which period he uninterruptedly discharged his duties to the entire satisfaction of his congregation. His piety and earnestness in his work have earned for him the high reputation and esteem of all the Jewish community. He was very liberal minded and always RUIINO ARQUISA, a fireman on board the Spanish steamer Mindanao, had his pocket picked yesterday in Queen's Road Central, a silver watch by Tung Achong, a member of the light colored tribe. The wily Chinaman took to his heels after collaring the clock, and while bounding along, followed by the Filipino thought of dropping the time-piece doubtless with a view of retaining for it at his leisure. Rafaela Tinsley, a married lady, who happened to witness the race and the dropping of the watch while she was walking in the same direction, saved the pick-pocket the trouble of making a return journey by picking up the chronometer and handing it over to the police. Ruiino eventually succeeded in overhauling the watch-grabbing job, but to his utter surprise, he found that the watch was gone, although he scrupulously searched the man all over. Being saloonized at not finding the missing watch, Ruiino concluded that he had gone for the wrong man or flag and that the runner had a rather wide and very easy natural access and had swallowed the watch. He was delighted, however, at regaining his watch from Mr. Wodehouse, this morning, and was wondering how it had found its way to that gentleman's desk when his suspense was relieved by the evidence of the lady who had picked the article up and who identified the prisoner as being the pursued member and the dropder of the watch. The prisoner said he was only promenadeing the side walls when arrested and charged with the theft of the watch, but as the evidence was all the other way, Mr. Wodehouse sent him into three months' retirement with hard labor thrown in, thus giving him ample time to ruminate on the folly of playing practical jokes with the property of others.

As we predicted in our issue of Saturday afternoon, the largest audience of the very successful season, which the prince of bristled gladiators, Herr Haselmayer, has had in Hongkong, patronized his last performance. The whole of the available seats were filled, and the back part of the theatre was literally crammed with spectators, many of whom were contented with scanty standing room. We have been at most of the performances given in the City Hall for several years past, and have never previously seen the ground floor so well filled as it was on Saturday evening last. When we take into consideration the fact that a number of people were unable to obtain admission to the performance for lack of room to accommodate them, it speaks in volumes for the readiness of the Hongkong community to support genuine talent, and it is much to the credit of Herr Haselmayer that his performances have been so well supported throughout. After the failure of the late Italian Opera Company to attract paying audiences, and the poor support accorded to Trompet-blower and his wretchedly miserable crowd of scarecrows, an idea was gaining ground that Hongkong was "full up" of show, and was a place to be shunned by patrons for the amusement of the public. Herr Haselmayer has done much to completely dispel that illusion, and his successful season will probably induce the proprietors of the dramatics and concert companies to pay us a visit and help to break the dull monotony of the long and wearisome summer which is now so near at hand. After all we have previously written respecting the performance of Professor Haselmayer, it would be useless to give fully the details of his farewell performance. The various illusions were performed in such clean, correct and rapid manner, that the audience were not only delighted with much applause. We must give a special list to the "Fountain of Youth" and the "Miser's Dream" scenes. The dollar producer, from this last scene, took the magic wand, and the magic show, and the articles of dress of the audience, combined with the marvellous disappearance of the Americans, was undoubtedly the most successful of the evening, and was received with enthusiasm. We are strongly of the opinion that this is one of the best of the "Fountain of Youth" scenes. Herr Haselmayer, in the "Miser's Dream" scene, was a perfect study for the artist. Psyché was a most beautiful illusion, and what will surprise you, the "Fountain of Youth" scene, which was the last of the season, was the most successful of the evening, and was received with enthusiasm. CRICKET.

IRELAND v. THE WORLD.

St. Patrick's Day was selected for the third trial of strength between teams representing the above named interests, and a start was made shortly after noon, the Irish players taking the first innings. As in the two previous matches each side had scored a win, a good deal of interest was displayed as to the result of the rubber, although it was generally conceded that the World was but indifferently represented. Travers and Rice were the first pair of batsmen, Van Buren and Shepherd leading off the attack. Travers opened his shoulders to the first ball sent down by the underhand trundler, scoring a brace, and despatched the second delivery for three, his colleague making a single off the last ball of the over. Shepherd's third ball Travers drove for three, and served the first ball of Van Buren's second over. In similar fashion. With twelve runs from two overs the underhands were rather too expensive, and Tomkins superseded the base-ball "crack." Still runs came freely and the telegraph board showed 29 when the new bowler rattled down the left hander's stumps, and with the addition of only four runs both Travers and Hodder were sent back by the same hand. Travers' 20 was composed of five threes, a two and a single. Hynes and G. S. Coxon made a good stand, the younger player especially batting in capital form. Hynes was bowled by D'Aeth with the score at 52, McDunn taking the vacant wicket, but he failed to stay and his successor, Wolsley, was only credited with three runs when Shepherd succeeded in getting one past his bat. Holiday hit hard during his short stay, Coxon meanwhile knocking the bowling with perfect impartiality all over the field. Hedley's old fashioned lobs were tried as a last resource after the fast bowlers had got considerably demoralised, and the change proved a most effective one, as Holiday was smartly "c and b" in the "Stumper's" first over, and both Lloyd and Coxon fell victims to the slow-clean bowled. The innings closed for the very respectable total, considering the state of the ground, of 135 runs, which included 8 extras. Coxon's 48 was made up of nine threes, five twos and a single—one of the best innings this promising batsman has yet played in Hongkong. Hedley's bowling average showed up well with 3 wickets for 14 runs, Tomkins accounting for the same number of victims at an outlay of 17 runs. D'Aeth had two for 31 and Shepherd one for 53.

D'Aeth and Hedley commenced business for "The World," Rice and Travers opening the bowling. Cautious play was the order of the day at first, and it soon became apparent that both trundlers were dead "on the spot." In Rice's second over D'Aeth sent the third ball to the boundary for three, Hedley immediately afterwards driving Travers for a quartette. With the score at 23 Hedley sent one from Rice into the hands of McDunn at mid off, having put 14 together in his usual slashing style. With the addition of another run, Hynes, who had taken the ball from Travers, drove Stuart on to his wicket, and Rice immediately afterwards bowled Grove, both the last named players having failed to score. Shepherd was the next to come and go, as after D'Aeth had punished Hynes' third over to the tune of 14 runs—two fours and a six—he fell a victim to a combination of Rice and Travers, and retired without troubling the scorers. Four for 53. When Hunter-Blair joined D'Aeth, Travers resumed bowling at his old end, and with such effect that the innings was finished in double quick time. With three consecutive balls Hunter-Blair, Farquhar and Tomkins were disposed of, the score then standing at 52 for 8 wickets. Gordon was unluckily run out, and Rice accounted for D'Aeth and Van Buren in consecutive overs, the innings closing for 59 runs. Rice took 5 wickets for 16 runs, Travers 3 for 22, and Hynes one for 15.

Being in a minority of 6, a follow-on was necessary when a much better display of batting was exhibited. At gun fire the World had in their second essay totalled 56 for the loss of 7 wickets. Hedley 20, Gordon 12, and D'Aeth 12 headed the list. Hynes was most successful with the ball accounting for five wickets at an outlay of 16 runs, thus rivaling Rice's fine performance in the first innings. The match thus ended in favor of the Irish by 76 runs on the first innings.
